2. In the opening verses of Luke 7 we find the account of Yeshua healing the servant of a Roman Centurion at Capernaum (verses 6-10). The Centurion describes himself as “a man under authority,” not “a man IN authority.” He also requested that Yeshua just say a word and the servant would be healed. How does the Centurion’s statement and actions show humility? How is the Centurion an example of faith in action?
3. After spending some time in Capernaum and healing the Centurion’s servant, Yeshua, His disciples and a large crowd of followers traveled to the village of Nain on the northern side of the hill of Moreh, just south of Nazareth.
